

End Notes

-
- ¹ Marshall-Carver High School almanac song.
- ² This information is taken from Chapter 8 "The Progressive Era" of Carol Berkin and Leonard Wood. Land of Promise: A History of the United States From 1865. vol. 2 (Illinois: Scott, Foresman and Company, 1986).
- ³ Provided here is the historical context of the early 1900s. This background is essential for understanding the reasons for a more local area to build a high school for black children, i.e. Marshall-Carver high school. The historical background is from the Land or Promise. Ibid.
- ⁴ Quoted from the Marshall-Carver High School's Quest for Excellence section in the locally published Histories of Pride: Thirteen Pioneers Who Shaped Georgetown's African American Community.
- ⁵ Ibid. p. 19.
- ⁶ Marshall-Carver High School Graduates, Georgetown Residents. Interview by author, 27 February 1998, Georgetown, Texas. Video recording.
- ⁷ Most of the information on the Marshall-Carver High School is taken from the primary source of Histories of Pride, referenced above. The quote comes from this source. Also, this narrative history hereafter follows closely the structure and time line of the article "Marshall-Carver High School's Quest for Excellence."
- ⁸ Documented in the Histories of Pride and in the Oct. 1925 Sanborn map of Georgetown, Texas. see attachment 1-5. The Sanborn maps are very well known maps created by the Sanborn Fire Insurance Company in order to map-out all the insured cities/towns and learn what each building was made of to insure coverage. A Sanborn map would contain the coordinates, street names, and all buildings in a certain area (such as Georgetown) at a certain time period.
- ⁹ Histories of Pride. p. 19.
- ¹⁰ Love, Ralph, Georgetown Historian. Interview by author, 5 February 1998, Georgetown. Georgetown Public Library, Georgetown, Texas.
- ¹¹ Histories of Pride. p. 19.
- ¹² Ibid.
- ¹³ This information on the new limestone school was provided by Historian Ralph Love and the Histories of Pride text.
- ¹⁴ The Ridge is the nickname for the property and area located near Georgetown's Blue Hole. The community living in this area were mainly African American citizens.
- ¹⁵ Histories of Pride. p. 20.
- ¹⁶ Interview with Marshall-Carver graduates, previously referenced. Paulette Taylor. see video recording.
- ¹⁷ Histories of Pride.
- ¹⁸ Ibid.
- ¹⁹ Interview with Marshall-Carver graduates.
- ²⁰ This quote is taken from the original civil docket file located at the US District Court House in Austin, Texas. Case number 1311. Case filed September 5, 1962; case ended April 18, 1964. see attachment 6-7.
- ²¹ Interview with Marshall-Carver graduates
- ²² The names of these professionals are taken from the Histories of Pride text. p. 21.

Bibliography

Berkin, Carol and Wood, Leonard. Land of Promise: A History of the United States From 1865. Vol. 2 Illinois: Scott, Foresman and Company, 1986.

Carver Elementary. Research for any school records. West 17th St., Georgetown, Texas.

Carver Elementary. Research for any school records. West 17th St., Georgetown, Texas.

Center for American History. Research of Sanborn Maps. The University of Texas at Austin, Austin, Texas

Georgetown Heritage Society (Gale Dillard). Information and guidance. Georgetown, Texas

Georgetown Independent School District. Superintendent Office, research for any school records. 603 Lakeway Dr. Georgetown, Texas.

Love, Ralph, Georgetown Historian. Interview by author, 5 February 1998, Georgetown, Texas. Georgetown Public Library.

Marshall-Carver High School Graduates. Georgetown Residents. Interview by author, 27 February 1998, Georgetown, Texas. Video recording (attached).

“Marshall-Carver High School’s Quest for Excellence.” Histories of Pride: Thirteen Pioneers Who Shaped Georgetown’s African American Community. Locally published.

Texas Education Agency. Research for any school records. Austin, Texas.